HOOVER STRATEGY UNDECIDED

PREDICT OHIO'S LARGEST VOTE

FIGURES SHOW 2,500,000 MAY CAST BALLOTS

Registration So Far Indicates Strong Interest Here.

By THE UNITED PRESS

The largest vote in the history of the state will be cast in the general election on November 6, according to state political observers who base their claim on registration figures from throughout the state.

Yesterday—the second registration day—brought out several hundred thousand additional voters, and the total for the registration period, in the opinion of Secretary of State Brown, will exceed 3,000,000.

Political experts, analyzing the registration, believe the total presidential vote next month will exceed 2,500,000.

Registration records were broken in all the large cities and while definite reports have not been received from outlying sections, observers freely predicted increases.

The largest previous vote in the state was in 1920—the first year of women suffrage—when 2,021,653 ballots were cast.

Four years ago the total presidential vote was 2,016,237.

Reports from over the state indicated that thousands of persons who have not voted in the past, have determined to cast ballots in November, probably because of interest in the presidential race.

COLORED MAGAZINE EDITOR SAYS SMITH HAS OFFENDED RACE

Negro Barred From Jobs
By Governor Is Charge

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—That Governor Al Smith, Democratic presidential candidate, has repudiated the colored people of the United States is the frank statement by Dr. W. E. Burghardt DuBois, editor of the "Crisis," the Negro monthly magazine and well known champion of the colored race.

In a statement made public here today Dr. DuBois said that the Democratic national committee has established "a Jim Crow annex" and refuses to allow the colored people to have offices in the regular headquarters. Continuing Dr. DuBois says:

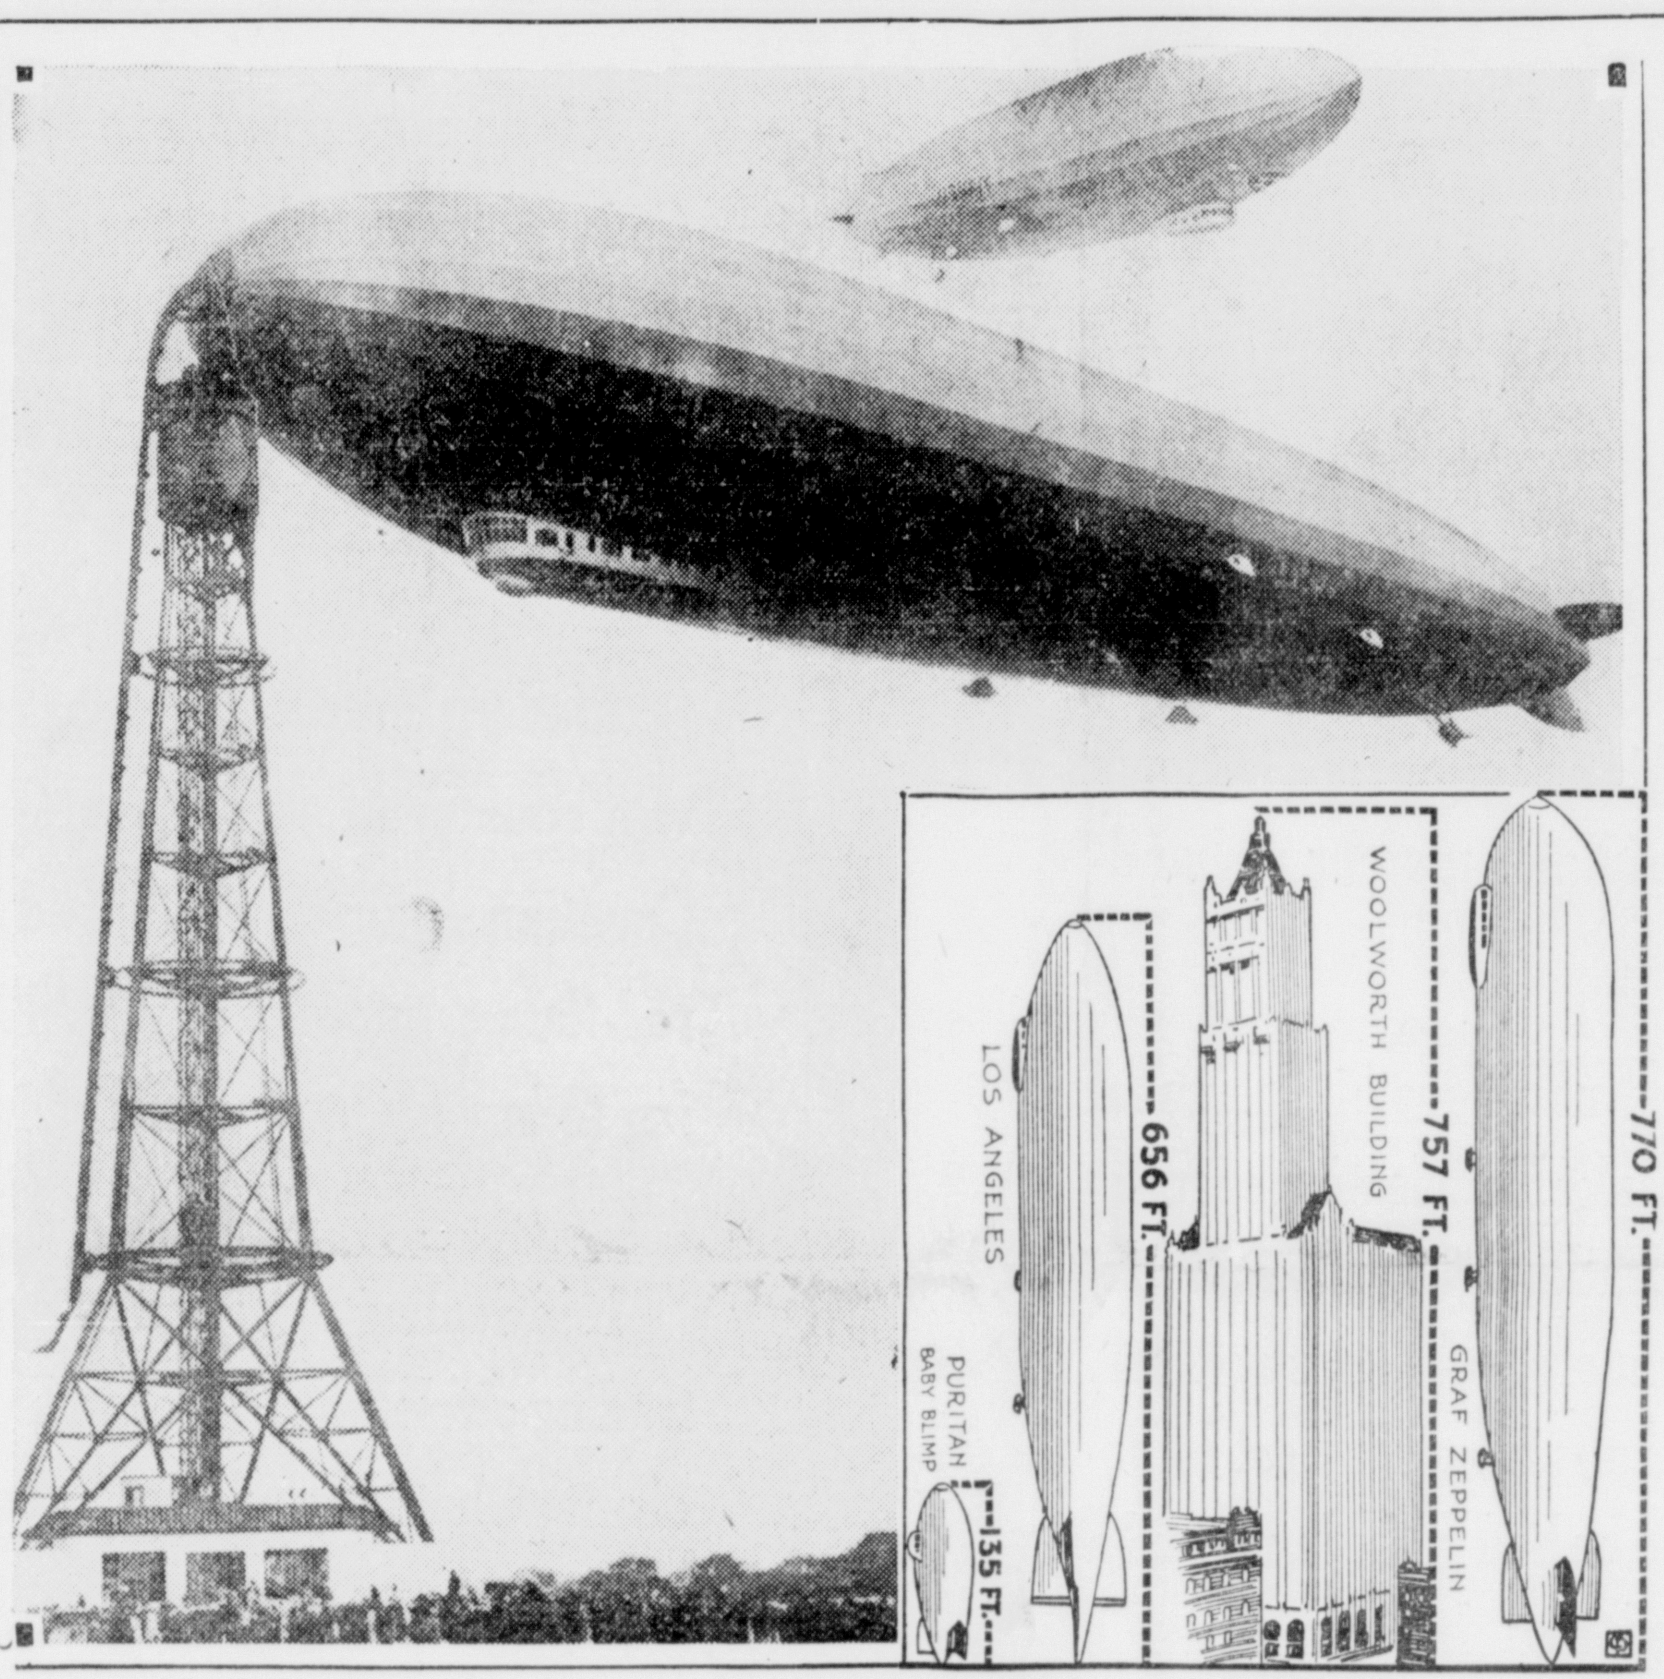

"A number of enthusiastic colored folk and friends of colored people put before the advisers of Governor Smith several possible statements which he might make to show that at least he was not an enemy of the American Negro. He refused to let even indirectly anything go out from his headquarters which should seem to represent him as friendly to the black men."

"Negro Democratic headquarters were indeed established but they were not allowed to have offices in the regular Democratic headquarters but were given a small 'Jim Crow' annex where they exist without any real authority, without explicit recognition, and without the slightest initiative."

"On the other hand, explicit and repeated anti-Negro propaganda is being sent out by Democratic headquarters. Democratic headquarters at Washington September 8 sent out the following release:

"Governor Smith does not have, and never has had, a Negro stenographer, and in the employment of Negroes by the state of New York under his administration this has been done only to fill such jobs as they are given in the south, to wit: porters, janitors, charwomen, etc."

RAIN, COLDER WEATHER, WILL END SPELL OF INDIAN SUMMER

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—Rain and colder, predicted for late today, were expected to end a stretch of unreasonably warm weather which has prevailed over the Great Lakes area for the past few days.

The temperature in the Cleveland area yesterday soared to 86, the hottest October day since 1898 when 87 was registered. The night also was exceptional warm and summer dresses and light suits reappeared.

Above normal temperatures also prevailed in other sections of the state, according to dispatches received here.

RASKOB REPUDIATES CHARGES THAT HOOVER OWNS OIL LANDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Issuing a formal statement sharply criticizing former Republican Senator Henry G. Raskob, head of the Smith Independent League, for his speech in Minneapolis Wednesday linking Herbert Hoover with Latin-American oil concessions, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic Committee last night disclaimed any responsibility for Raskob's speech.

Hansbrough's address had brought a vigorous denial from the Republican national committee that Hoover had connections with any Latin-American oil concessions. "I regret it a great deal," Raskob said. "There is absolutely no truth in the charge. It is a great pity that Senator Hansbrough should have made the charge."

"I had sent Senator Hansbrough a telegram advising him that the facts were untrue and asked that he refrain from delivering it. I was advised that he was to make the speech. I learned of it through the organization."

Raskob said that Hansbrough had not been routed through the Democratic national committee's speakers bureau and that he has not been scheduled to make any speeches for the bureau in the future.

SHOT AND INSULTED AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—A. J. Miller, of Akron, was in a hospital here today suffering from bullet wounds received when fellow-hunters mistook him for a "groundhog." Miller was sitting behind a stump, with only the top of his head showing, when one of the men fired. He may lose the sight of one eye.

LITERARY DIGEST POLL STILL GIVES HOOVER VOTE LEAD

Smith Gains During Week Report
Indicates

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Within the past week, the lead of Herbert Hoover over Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the national presidential poll being conducted by the Literary Digest has been reduced 10 per cent. The magazine will show in its Oct. 13 issue.

Out of 1,911,257 votes cast, Hoover's total stands at 1,201,869 and Smith's 688,829. A week ago, Hoover had 68 per cent of the total vote and Smith 31 per cent. This week, Hoover's percentage was reduced to 63 and Smith's increased to 36, the magazine said.

As the poll in the southern states is at present not more than half completed the count there can hardly be taken as closely indicative of the final returns, the magazine continues.

Hoover leads in Smith's own state. The New York figures show Hoover having 170,113; Smith, 144,276. In New York City, Smith leads with 102,539 over Hoover's 65,205.

The Literary Digest says that 239,913 persons who voted Republican four years ago are on the Smith roster, while 167,386 persons of former Democratic allegiance turned to Hoover.

HOVER PRAISED BY SECRETARY MELLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—In a radio address, Secretary of Treasury Mellon last night reviewed accomplishments of the Republican administration since 1921, and urged election of Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate because, he said, prosperity in the United States would thus be further extended.

TIME OF DEPARTURE FOR CALIFORNIA IS WORRYING LEADERS

Nominee May Remain To
To Combat Smith In East.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Herbert Hoover and his managers are facing a delicate problem in campaign strategy involving the date of the Republican candidate's departure for California to cast his ballot.

The problem is whether it is more important for Hoover to leave early so he may visit "doubtful states" on his way west, thus leaving the eastern field open to Governor Alfred E. Smith in the last few days, or to remain here as late as possible for any last-minute developments and eliminate western stops.

The Republican candidate could leave here as late as Nov. 1 or 2 and get to California for the election, if he went direct. He would then be here almost through Smith's final week, which ends Nov. 3.

If Hoover stops on the way west, he would have to leave a few days earlier, missing the last week here. Insistent requests have come here for him to stop in as widely separated states as Minnesota, Missouri and Texas.

Hoover started completing the address he will deliver in Boston Monday night by looking himself away in the study of his S Street home all day yesterday.

Despite confinement to campaign duties in the last few days the Republican candidate appears fresh and in excellent health. The duties are not as arduous as were many of his engineering and relief assignments.

The waterpower issue was brought to the front here again today with publication of a pamphlet by Judson King, director of the National Popular Government League, analyzing the views of each candidate and containing a statement by Senator George Norris of Nebraska, champion of government operation of Muscle Shoals.

In his judgment, no progressive minded citizen can honestly and impartially compare the records of Governor Smith and Mr. Hoover on the waterpower question without being led to the inevitable conclusion that Governor Smith is as far ahead of Mr. Hoover as daylight is brighter than darkness," Norris statement said.

SEEK TO RESTRAIN BLUE LAW ARRESTS

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 12.—Hearing will be held in common pleas court here Monday on the application of the Penray Photo-play Company of Martins Ferry to have Mayor Howard A. Duff and Police Chief J. Wesley Muhleman of that city restrained from disturbing its theater employees.

The company now has in effect a temporary restraining order designed to keep the officials from refusing bond to projection machine operators arrested for Sunday operation of shows. This was obtained after the mayor had appeared from the city and the police had refused to receive bond, necessitating two habeas corpus proceedings in county courts here on a single Sunday.

SMITH AND HOOVER ARE DEBATED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Herbert Hoover became the "man who perfectly fits the picture of the next president" and Al Smith a "knight errant of the common people" here last night as Gilbert Bettman, Republican candidate for attorney general and Henry Morgenthau, Democrat, former ambassador to Turkey debated the candidates and campaign.

Bettman, the G. O. P. selection for attorney general and a Cincinnati lawyer by profession, made his big play on prosperity.

His opponent stressed "the red-blooded man," Al Smith.

The rosters became so boisterous that I. F. Frieberger, the chairman, had to rebuke the audience.

"ALL WELL" REPORTS DIRIGIBLE; EXPECT BLIMP LATE SUNDAY

Believe Air Liner Heading Over Ocean By Way Of Madeira; Adverse Winds May Delay
Arrival In States.

By UNITED PRESS

The Graf Zeppelin, flying from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the United States, apparently was over the south Atlantic today, making her way to this country to the south of a storm area that was moving as far down as the Azores.

The Zeppelin reported "all well" today but did not divulge her position. She was believed, however, to be headed across the Atlantic by way of Madeira.

The Western Union station at Horta, Azores, reported at 8:35 a. m., E. S. T., that Graf Zeppelin had passed over Madeira. The report was not confirmed from other sources.

The British steamer Gymeric reported at 6 a. m. E. S. T., that she had sighted the Graf Zeppelin at 7 degrees west and 35 north. That is a point about thirty miles off the northwest coast of Africa and about 400 miles from Madeira.

Previous to the report from the Gymeric, the Graf Zeppelin was last sighted at Casellan, on the east coast of Spain. Even at a low speed, she would have passed beyond Gibraltar by this time, and since she kept reporting all well, there appeared little doubt that she was over the Atlantic.

The Graf Zeppelin apparently avoided passing directly over Gibraltar, but cut across the straight or the tip of Africa to the south of it. At 12:20 a. m., she notified the Gibraltar wireless station that she was passing that vicinity, the wireless station at Lisbon announced.

Watchers at Gibraltar reported the distance from Gibraltar to Funchal, Madeira, is 700 miles. Assuming that the zeppelin was in the vicinity of Gibraltar at 12:20 a. m. E. S. T., she would reach Madeira at 2:20 p. m., E. S. T., if her speed were fifty miles an hour. If she made sixty miles an hour, she would get there at noon, and if she made seventy miles—a little above her normal cruising speed—she would arrive at 10:20 a. m.

The distance from Funchal to the United States is 3,183 miles. If the dirigible averages sixty miles an hour across the ocean, she should make the distance in fifty-three hours, putting her in New York Sunday afternoon or Sunday night.

Adverse winds might delay her until late Sunday night or early Monday morning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Graf Zeppelin, enroute to the United States from Friedrichshafen, Germany, was reported in the south Atlantic, off the coast of Africa, in a radio message received here today.

The message was from the British steamer Gymeric and was received by the Radio Marine Corporation. It said the Gymeric had sighted the dirigible at 7 degrees west and 35 north.

If the message is correct, the dirigible has passed beyond Gibraltar and, after more than twenty-four hours of slow progress from Friedrichshafen, is at last on the open Atlantic, headed for America.

The position given is about thirty miles off the northwest tip of Africa and fifty-five miles due north of Rabat. It is about 200 miles southwest of Gibraltar.

MADRID, Oct. 12.—Favorable weather conditions prevail over the Atlantic along the route that the Graf Zeppelin is expected to follow, the forecast said today.

The winds generally are to the westward—in the direction of the Azores Islands—and are not expected to change within at least the next fourteen or fifteen hours.

Should Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, decide to turn northward he would find severe storms north of parallel 45, the weather report said.

This parallel is far north of the Azores Islands and the advance plans of the German commander had been for a flight course that would take the Graf Zeppelin either over the Azores or just south of them. The course would avoid the bad storms along the northern Atlantic route.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Mrs. Henry A. Eisele, 30, and her daughter, Patricia, 4, who were killed late yesterday by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train when they attempted to flee to safety after the automobile in which they were riding became stalled on a railroad crossing.

Mrs. John J. Puskar sustained a broken ankle, while Mrs. Charles Moss and her six-month-old daughter, Patricia Ann, escaped injury.

Mrs. Eisele, with her daughter in her arms, stumbled just after she left the car, her body was thrown 200 feet by the train, while the child's body was thrown seventy-five feet.

CLEVELAND GUNMAN
SENTENCED TO LIFE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Michael Shinkman, Cleveland underworld character, was under sentence of life imprisonment today for the second degree murder of Phillip "Funny Face" Corry who was shot to death here several weeks ago.

Shinkman was found guilty by a jury which included seven women. He will appeal.

The killing, according to police, culminated an underworld feud.

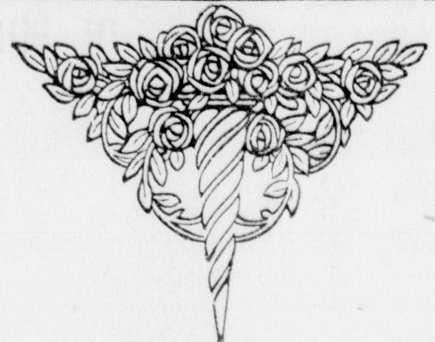

WILL FACE MURDER

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 12.—Murder charges were to be placed against Anton Wiskoff, 61, today following the death of his wife, Mrs. Anna Wiskoff, 64. Police charge Wiskoff shot his wife during an argument over her desire to accept employment outside of the home.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS !!

FOR ESSENTIALS
OR LUXURIES---
BUY IN XENIA

Here is represented a sizable fortune.

This money at 7 per cent interest is $10,500 a year and few Xenia families have that amount to spend annually.

Yet every Xenia man who has any part of that amount to spend for clothing, has $150,000 worth of stock from which to make his selection. That sum represents the investment of Xenia merchants handling men's clothing.

When the Greene County man does his personal shopping in Xenia, he can make his selection of suits, caps, hats, trousers, socks, underwear, shirts, neckties, overcoats, belts, suspenders, collars, sweaters, raincoats, topcoats and overalls from the best offerings in such merchandise to be had in the land, and a fortune has been so invested that he may have a wide and varying selection from which to choose.

Arranged neatly on shelves and hangers in Xenia stores, where it is presented for sale by helpful salesmen anxious to serve a discriminating clientele, it represents a collection of merchandise that would stagger a king.

* * * * *

Xenia clothing merchants know that catering to the tastes of Greene County men is no different from catering to the tastes of New York men. The circulation of newspapers and periodicals, the development of fast transportation, and other means of swift dissemination of information, have made distances in these United States insignificant.

It is no more possible to sell an enlightened Greene County buying public cheap and shoddy merchandise of out-of-date fashions than it would be to sell these same people a two-cylinder automobile such as was popular back a decade.

Modern improvements have so closely knit this vast country of ours that attempting to sell a Greene Countian a pair of peg-topped trousers or a suit of red-flannel underwear would be just as futile as trying to buy his land with a string of glass beads.

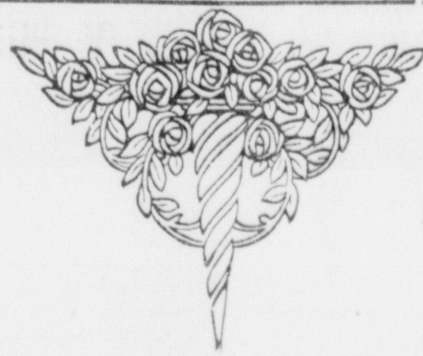

It is dealing with and catering to an enlightened trading circle, that have made Xenia clothing merchants what they are—alert to new materials, new styles and conscientious about quality, and service.

The fact that Xenia clothing merchants have done business in Xenia for years, making their appeal to a population that has remained almost the same and with transient trade at a minimum, proves they are employing a system of business integrity that counts next season's good-will as well as today's dollars.

All Xenia merchants realize that such a system insures continued operation in business here and is sufficient guarantee to the prospective customer of honest merchandise. And on such a policy as this have Xenia clothing merchants built wisely and well.

DAYTON AND XENIA RAILWAY MAY BUY SPRINGFIELD-XENIA LINE

Returning Thursday from a hearing before the State Utilities Commission at Columbus, T. A. Ferneding, president of the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co., announced that purchase of the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. line by his company, depends upon the decision of the Springfield-Xenia company.

At the hearing Thursday, the commission authorized the abandonment of service on the Springfield-Xenia route, effective after thirty days notice to the public, with the understanding that any firm or individual wishing to purchase the line for continuation of operation should be given preference over purchase with the intention of junking the equipment. It was revealed at the hearing that negotiations between Mr. Ferneding and the Springfield-Xenia company for the purchase of the latter's line, now operating at a loss, have been under way since last July.

The Dayton-Xenia company opposed total abandonment of the line on the ground the Springfield-Xenia line is a "feeder" for its passenger and freight service.

It developed at the hearing that subsidiaries of both companies have filed applications for bus certification.

DAYTON AND XENIA RAILWAY MAY BUY SPRINGFIELD-XENIA LINE

Returning Thursday from a hearing before the State Utilities Commission at Columbus, T. A. Ferneding, president of the Dayton-Xenia Railway Co., announced that purchase of the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. line by his company, depends upon the decision of the Springfield-Xenia company.

At the hearing Thursday, the commission authorized the abandonment of service on the Springfield-Xenia route, effective after thirty days notice to the public, with the understanding that any firm or individual wishing to purchase the line for continuation of operation should be given preference over purchase with the intention of junking the equipment. It was revealed at the hearing that negotiations between Mr. Ferneding and the Springfield-Xenia company for the purchase of the latter's line, now operating at a loss, have been under way since last July.

The Dayton-Xenia company opposed total abandonment of the line on the ground the Springfield-Xenia line is a "feeder" for its passenger and freight service.

It developed at the hearing that subsidiaries of both companies have filed applications for bus certificates.

MAYOR'S COURT

CHANGES PLEA

Changing his plea from not guilty to guilty, Frank Ford, 59, this city, released about a month ago from the Cincinnati Workhouse, was fined $100 and costs for possessing liquor by Mayor John W. Prugh Thursday. He will probably be committed to the County Jail if he defaults in payment of the assessment.

Ford, however, disclaimed ownership to two half-pints of corn whiskey found in his auto Wednesday night by police.

GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE

After fining Robert Nooks, 19, colored, $25 and costs and imposing a sentence of ten days in the County Jail, Mayor Prugh suspended both the fine and sentence Wednesday on the condition of good behavior. Nooks pleaded guilty to resisting an officer.

Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SOVEREIGN GOD—The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely, so shall it come to pass, and as I have purposed, so shall it stand.—Isa. 14:24.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Columbus day has become a legal holiday in all but 13 states, and probably it will be in those states within a few years. It serves to perpetuate the memory of the man who more than anyone else started a movement of discovery and exploration which greatly enlarged the borders of the known earth during the century following his stupendous exploit.

All great men have their detractors. Some would say that if Columbus had not discovered America, someone else would have done so within a short time. But that does not follow. At that period the western seas were regarded as a limitless place, full of terrors. The superstitious folks of that age dared not brave those unknown perils. The idea of finding land across that mysterious sea was regarded as a most preposterous dream.

If Columbus had not reasoned out the probability of land across the ocean from Europe, or if he had not had the supreme courage to put his theories to the test, or if he had lacked the dominating command that kept his terrified sailors sailing into the unknown when they wanted to turn around and quit, then America might have remained undiscovered for centuries. It might not have been discovered at this date.

Europe was then plodding away in its old rut, satisfied with its own narrow development, engrossed with its own problems. Columbus helped it get out of that rut, and showed a vast chance for developments, previously not dreamed of.

A great liberation of the human spirit came as the result of his discovery. The new continent gave a chance for new ideas of government to be worked out, it promoted democracy and scientific progress. We all owe a great deal to the man for whom we celebrate October 12.

NATIONAL HOARDING

One of the grotesque revelations of the week has been the announcement that a total of more than $400,000,000 is hoarded away in America outside of banks. Stockings, cupboards, old jars, mattress crannies and other hidden places are believed to be the receptacles of this surprisingly large sum.

It is almost inconceivable that so much money should be secreted and kept out of banking institutions. It is easily understood, of course, that even more millions are kept out of banks for the transaction of business, but that $400,000,000 aside from this being withheld from banks indicates that a heap of education is still necessary.

THE FALLING BIRTH RATE

Premier Mussolini of Italy has written an article deploring the decline of the birth rate in Italy, in the rest of Europe, and in the United States. He fears that as a result the yellow and black races, whose fecundity remains unimpaired, may eventually gain the upper hand.

The forceful Italian premier seemingly wants a large birth rate primarily for fighting purposes. But the women are not going to raise children merely for cannon fodder. What we want in our population is not quantity but quality. A smaller number of superior persons will always control the world as against a greater number of less developed people.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

GRUMBLERS

It is strange what a high price the grumbler, the crab, the grouchy, the pessimist, is willing to pay for the satisfaction it gives him to grumble. Every one of us knows that if we give away to expressions of ill feeling, bodily or any other kind, we begin to feel worse and are worse. No surer way of making ourselves unhappy than by complaining. When we are gloomy and grumble we make those who care for us unhappy. And yet there is a kind of ignoble satisfaction in being miserable and making others miserable. That's what we have to fight.

POLITICS

Schwab, the happy capitalist, says he likes both of the big men who are running for the presidency. He doesn't say how he will vote. "I think more of my job than I do of politics," said the steel master. "They wanted me to be treasurer of the Republican campaign, but I turned it down."

Many may think Mr. Schwab is very wise when he refuses to get into politics. They will like to hear him say that he thinks more of his job than of politics. But such a view is not the best one in American public life today. Mr. Schwab is an exceedingly able man. He is noted for a large, sane view of life. A few men like him ought to be deeply engaged in American political life. A few men like him ought to be candidates for office.

OUR WORLD

We read that in the last year at least 3,000 persons a month have been murdered in the uprisings and revolutions in China. Nearly 400,000 have been made homeless. Forty million dollars worth of property has been destroyed. Well, China is a long way off and we think little of death and disaster when it is on the other side of the earth. But it is all our world. That catastrophe can cover such a portion of it shows how far the forces of chaos are yet uncured. Humanity has a long way to go. It is still in the midst of struggle and turmoil.

LET'S BE CAREFUL

A nine-year-old Chicago boy was killed under the wheels of an automobile on the first day of school. It was a grim and tragic lesson for a great city. It is a tragic lesson for all cities. Children, full of new life and vigor, refreshed by vacation, are back in school. Lacking other places to play they will run in the streets. Their judgment is not mature. They cannot be depended upon to think. Grown-ups must think for them, act for them, look out for them. May there be no sad lesson in these early days of school to teach us all to be careful.

The Diary
of a
New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—Moving day—Oct. 1—may be past in New York, but people still are moving. The heira this year was supposed to involve from 60,000 to 100,000 persons. And moving vans and landlords and hotels took full advantage, so much advantage that some folk gave up in despair, sleeping here and there until mercy should be shown.

For, about October 15, the shoe will be on the other foot. Rents will drop, persons will be implored to take apartments and hotels won't be so haughty.

Other cities may be expensive, but New York in October is no place for a man with a light pocketbook looking for a home. He is treated as poor white trash.

A friend of mine was unwise enough to give up his apartment prior to obtaining another. He and his family now are wanderers. For two weeks they trekked a pitiful city looking for two rooms furnished—two good rooms. The lowest quotation (and for what!) was $1,800 a year.

I've just been over in Jersey—the Oranges (East Orange proper, west and south), Newark, Jersey City. Beautiful drives, large towns and a metropolis (Newark) that over-shadows the majority of cities in the west. But the friends of mine who live on the outskirts of Newark and work in New York pass three hours a day riding back and forth, usually hanging to a strap and sometimes getting stalled in a tube under the Hudson.

I called on Senator James A. Reed of Missouri at the Biltmore hotel, where he has been quartered high above the city and other Democrats. For Governor Smith and New York Democrats put up at the Biltmore.

The senator still is the fiery old soul he was, and insists he is voluntarily retiring from politics and is "one lame duck who isn't lame." He did not run for renomination and therefore retires with the coming in of the new administration next March 4.

"But I haven't lost my interest in the public," he declares. Besides returning to his law practice in Kansas city, or nationally, rather, it is rumored he intends to write a book on Woodrow Wilson. He won't comment on the matter.

If this, the most ironic man in the senate, should write of the man he so bitterly attacked, Wilsonian Democrats will have a spasm.

Since Al Smith beat him for the Democratic nomination, Reed hasn't been requested to do much speaking. Probably because of an interview he gave at the beginning of the campaign, in which he didn't hesitate to say what he thought of the Republicans. It shocked the suave gentlemen in charge of the present campaign, who preferred arguments with fewer invectives.

Senator Jim is aging a bit. But his white mane bristles and eyes snap as he speaks of the iniquities at Washington, and that he has a young Republic such as ours is. He's for Al Smith all right, but he is poring over blueprints in an oil suit—a caged lion. Yes, he says Al Smith "can be trusted to guard the interests of America"—this old lion growling unheeded high up in the Biltmore.

Met one business man from the Pacific coast who said he'd vote for Al Smith if he were on the Republican ticket, but never would vote for a Democrat. I'm not a politician, therefore do not know how to interpret that.

The Theater Guild is getting ready to produce "Faust," and George C. Tyler is rehearsing "Macbeth." Thus the season in the theater begins classically. Producers, despite tons of manuscripts, complain few good plays are being written anywhere in the world.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

For years hotels have been competing with one another to provide the ultimate in a guest's comfort. But it is only recently that someone had enough imagination to think of anything so sensible as a telephone extension in the bath room. What is more annoying than to have to get out of the bath tub, all dripping, and stand by a wall telephone?

One hotel I saw recently has two telephones in each room, one by the bath tub and the other on a stand by the head of the bed. Excellent places for phones, but think how long it took for hotel men, even hotel men with the best of intentions, to quit putting them on the wall where a guest can't even sit down.

For that matter, it hasn't been many years since phones in private homes were first placed where one could talk and be comfortable all at once.

The Athletics found out long ago that the only way to keep from being licked by the Yanks is not to play them.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—"The human race certainly does improve," said Dr. Alex. Hrdlicka, the world-famous anthropologist, warmly, in answer to my query: "Has man shown no advance?"

—as some scientists contend—from the time when he reached the stone-hatchet stage of development, to the present day? Waiving the detail of our so-called modern conveniences, have we stood still, as a species, throughout all the ages?

"Why," continued the doctor, whirling around from his desk in his quarters at the Smithsonian Institution's National museum, "let alone its progress since the earlier pre-historic period, the race has gained ground in the course of historic times—and continues to gain."

"Consider man physically," adjured the specialist. "He is breaking athletic records constantly. Clearly, in that respect he is improving, even as we watch him."

"And mentally?" "Compare our literature with the ancient Greeks and Romans." "If we except the works of a very few eminent men, in old Rome and Athens, our modern product is far far superior to the ancients'. In contrast with our average, theirs was positively puerile," said the doctor, emphatically.

"Is not the difference due to the wider dissemination of modern education?" I inquired. "No," rejoined the doctor. "It is due to improved cerebration. The average school boy of today is an abler thinker than the average Greek of mature years in the epoch which we spoke of as the zenith of Hellenic culture."

"What I want to know, doctor," I interrupted, "is whether or not you can interpret our present presidential campaign as any indication of the human race's progress?"

The distinguished scientist's jaw dropped slightly. "I'm," he observed, plainly somewhat nonplussed.

"I see. You refer to the politician—whose appeal is to the mob?" He reflected—doubt writ large upon his countenance. It was evident to me that, for the moment, my question had staggered even his confidence in the supposedly infallible code which decrees that "the law of life is 'progress'."

"Never mind the politician," I urged, trying to take it for granted that politicians never do change, and striving to drive home my advantage.

"How about the mob? Has the mob improved?"

"This interrogation had the contrary effect from the one I had expected. "Yes," said the doctor, recovering himself, "the mob has improved. The mob is average and there is no question about improvement, on the average. That rule is undeviating."

"There may be units in the mob which have shown no improvement. The mob, as a whole, is a better quality mob than formerly."

"Life is evolution, and politics is a part of it."

"Therefore, political evolution—progress—is as inevitable as biological evolution."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

When your child is reaching the age of two, it has developed from the stage where it needs only the simple, rudimentary physical attention, and shows signs of impending beauty or else the lack of it. Now is the time for you to firmly decide what you are going to do for the good looks of the baby, and set about it in a wise and sensible way.

To begin with, be very careful of the sensitive skin of a two-year-old. Because he is past the stage, do not neglect careful and abundant powdering after the bath, and particularly during hot weather. In selecting your powder, you may either choose a can of bath talcum which is so convenient because of the large body puff which accompanies it, or you may use that old standby of our grandmothers—burnt flour. To prepare the latter, place a large amount of flour in a shallow baking pan and put it into a warm oven, shaking it from time to time until the whole mass becomes a light, golden brown. Pack this in open mouth jars or in an empty bath powder tin, and shake it abundantly in all the folds of the child's skin. Be particularly careful not to neglect the delicate areas between the fingers and the toes. Many a child's crossness results from sore feet or hands, which come from irritated and neglected spaces between toes and fingers.

Every child of two requires a nap each day. See that it takes it in the open air, if possible, or at least in a room with wide open windows, lightly covered and unhampered by any tight clothing. The admirable time for the nap is between 11 and 12:30 in the morning. By regulating the daytime sleep, it will not interfere with an early retiring, a prime essential of health and beauty to the baby.

I am going to talk about car shaping now, however. If you really are interested in the good looks of your child, you should begin this process when the child is about three months old, or even earlier should the ears stand out very noticeably.

I believe that you cannot do better in attempting to shape the ears of your child than by purchasing a regular cap for this purpose, which is carried in almost every specialty shop throughout the country. If you attempt to make your own, you may, through lack of knowledge, put too much pressure on the sensitive parts of the child's head. You cannot be too careful in this matter, for many cases of permanent affliction have developed through careless handling of the child's head. Should you be unable to purchase the ear cap, wide strips of adhesive tape may be attached overnight, pinning the outer end of the ear flat to the head.

When packing dresses in a suitcase, especially those with pleated skirts, you will find that they will not become wrinkled if folded as follows: Cut the side pieces away from the cover or bottom of a cardboard dress box. Take the flat piece of cardboard and cover with tissue paper. Place this between the front and back layers of the dress. Next take several pieces of tissue paper folded lengthwise, and lay through the center on top. Then fold the sides over toward the center and double the blouse part down to make it fit the case. If the dress is exceptionally fuzzy, place a piece of cardboard on top and bottom after folding, and tie together with pieces of tape. In this way it cannot be tossed out of place.

Fresh Cookies

When baking cookies for a small family you will find it very satisfactory to roll and bake only a few, just enough for the day. The rest of the dough will keep many days in the refrigerator if kept in a tightly-covered dish. A few more fresh ones can be baked when wanted, thus stale cookies are avoided.

Packing Dresses.

When packing dresses in a suitcase, especially those with pleated skirts, you will find that they will not become wrinkled if folded as follows: Cut the side pieces away from the cover or bottom of a cardboard dress box. Take the flat piece of cardboard and cover with tissue paper. Place this between the front and back layers of the dress. Next take several pieces of tissue paper folded lengthwise, and lay through the center on top. Then fold the sides over toward the center and double the blouse part down to make it fit the case. If the dress is exceptionally fuzzy, place a piece of cardboard on top and bottom after folding, and tie together with pieces of tape. In this way it cannot be tossed out of place.

This is to get some one to hold a glass of water so you can drink it while you put your fingers in your ears, and hold them there while you drink the water rapidly without taking a breath."

Hicough is a spasm of the diaphragm, causing a characteristic sound as the air is sucked in through the vocal cords. It most always subsides by itself in a short time, without any treatment.

Sometimes, pressing on the neck on the sides over the muscles that leads from the mastoid bone—right back of the ear—to the breast-bone in front, will press the phrenic nerve which leads to the diaphragm and may have some influence on the spasms. Sometimes simply holding the breath for a short time will stop them. Drinking a glass of water effective. Perhaps keeping the fingers in the ears makes it more so. I cannot think up a reason for this, but I'll pass it on, because it may be helpful.

CAN WORKING WIFE
KEEP PACE? IS PROBLEM
FOR HER TO SOLVE

The question of the working wife is a very vital one nowadays. Shall two young people postpone their marriage until he can support them both, or shall they marry at once and the girl keep on working? It is largely up to the girl. She must realize that it means a double job for her, no matter how much help the young husbands is willing to give her. He MUST make good in his job in order to succeed. There will be no stopping for him. Therefore, the bulk of the housework must necessarily devolve upon her. Is she strong enough physically to do a good job at the office where she is employed and at least plan the meals, cleaning, laundry, etc., that housekeeping involves? If not, don't tackle it, especially if you are not a trained housewife. "Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 19 years of age and have been going with a man six years. My senior for a year and a half. We have been planning to be married, but feel as though we would like to have enough money to start housekeeping on without going into debt. We also thought of being married, and both of us keeping on working, as we both have excellent good jobs. If we take the other plan, it will be at least another year before we have enough to start. Please give us your advice."

JACK AND JILL.

Plenty of girls do keep house and keep their jobs for a time after marriage. It depends largely on the girl. It will have to be ready when you get home from work, and plan to get it the quickest and easiest way. Do you know anything about housekeeping? If so, it will be easier for you; if not, why not take a course at some night school and study yourself? If you can qualify, wait—although you are pretty young. If you do not feel equal to it, better wait the year. There is another danger that confronts young people who both work, and that is getting used to the double salary and finding it hard to be contented and make ends meet on the one when they decide it is best for her to stop working.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SOVEREIGN GOD—The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass, and as I have purposed, so shall it stand.—Isa. 14:24.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

Columbus day has become a legal holiday in all but 13 states, and probably it will be in those states within a few years. It serves to perpetuate the memory of the man who more than anyone else started a movement of discovery and exploration which greatly enlarged the borders of the known earth during the century following his stupendous exploit.

All great men have their detractors. Some would say that if Columbus had not discovered America, someone else would have done so within a short time. But that does not follow. At that period the western seas were regarded as a limitless place, full of terrors. The superstitious folks of that age dared not brave those unknown perils. The idea of finding land across that mysterious sea was regarded as a most preposterous dream.

If Columbus had not reasoned out the probability of land across the ocean from Europe, or if he had not had the supreme courage to put his theories to the test, or if he had lacked the dominating command that kept his terrified sailors sailing into the unknown when they wanted to turn around and quit, then America might have remained undiscovered for centuries. It might not have been discovered at this date.

Europe was then plodding away in its old rut, satisfied with its own narrow development, engrossed with its own problems. Columbus helped it get out of that rut, and showed a vast chance for developments, previously not dreamed of.

A great liberation of the human spirit came as the result of his discovery. The new continent gave a chance for new ideas of government to be worked out, it promoted democracy and scientific progress. We all owe a great deal to the man for whom we celebrate October 12.

NATIONAL HOARDING

One of the grotesque revelations of the week has been the announcement that a total of more than $400,000,000 is hoarded away in America outside of banks. Stockings, cupboards, old jars, mattress crannies and other hidden places are believed to be the receptacles of this surprisingly large sum.

It is almost inconceivable that so much money should be secreted and kept out of banking institutions. It is easily understood, of course, that even more millions are kept out of banks for the transaction of business, but that $400,000,000 aside from this is being withheld from banks indicates that a heap of education is still necessary.

THE FALLING BIRTH RATE

Premier Mussolini of Italy has written an article deploring the decline of the birth rate in Italy, in the rest of Europe, and in the United States. He fears that as a result the yellow and black races, whose fecundity remains unimpaired, may eventually gain the upper hand.

The forceful Italian premier seemingly wants a large birth rate primarily for fighting purposes. But the women are not going to raise children merely for cannon fodder. What we want in our population is not quantity but quality. A smaller number of superior persons will always control the world as against a greater number of less developed people.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

GRUMBLERS

It is strange what a high price the grumbler, the crab, the grouch, the pessimist, is willing to pay for the satisfaction it gives him to grumble. Every one of us knows that if we give away to expressions of ill feeling, bodily or any other kind, we begin to feel worse and are worse. No surer way of making ourselves unhappy than by complaining. When we are gloomy and grumble we make those who care for us unhappy. And yet there is a kind of ignoble satisfaction in being miserable and making others miserable. That's what we have to fight.

POLITICS

Schwab, the happy capitalist, says he likes both of the big men who are running for the presidency. He doesn't say how he will vote. "I think more of my job than I do of politics," said the steel master. "They wanted me to be treasurer of the Republican campaign, but I turned it down."

Many may think Mr. Schwab is very wise when he refuses to get into politics. They will like to hear him say that he thinks more of his job than of politics. But such a view is not the best one in American public life today. Mr. Schwab is an exceedingly able man. He is noted for a large, sane view of life. A few men like him ought to be deeply engaged in American political life. A few men like him ought to be candidates for office.

OUR WORLD

We read that in the last year at least 3,000 persons a month have been murdered in the uprisings and revolutions in China. Nearly 400,000 have been made homeless. Forty million dollars worth of property has been destroyed. Well, China is a long way off and we think little of death and disaster when it is on the other side of the earth. But it is all our world. That catastrophe can cover such a portion of it shows how far the forces of chaos are yet uncured. Humanity has a long way to go. It is still in the midst of struggle and turmoil.

LET'S BE CAREFUL

A nine-year-old Chicago boy was killed under the wheels of an automobile on the first day of school. It was a grim and tragic lesson for a great city. It is a tragic lesson for all cities. Children, full of new life and vigor, refreshed by vacation, are back in school. Lacking other places to play they will run in the streets. Their judgment is not mature. They cannot be depended upon to think. Grown-ups must think for them, act for them, look out for them. May there be no sad lesson in these early days of school to teach us all to be careful.

The Diary

of a

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—Moving day—Oct. 1—may be past in New York, but people still are moving. The heira this year was supposed to involve from 60,000 to 100,000 persons. And moving vans and landlords and hotels took full advantage, so much advantage that some folk gave up in despair, sleeping here and there until mercy should be shown.

For, about October 15, the shoe will be on the other foot. Rents will drop, persons will be implored to take apartments and hotels won't be so haughty.

Other cities may be expensive, but New York in October is no place for a man with a light pocketbook looking for a home. He is treated as poor white trash.

A friend of mine was unwise enough to give up his apartment prior to obtaining another. He and his family now are wanderers. For two weeks they trekked a pitiless city looking for two rooms furnished—two good rooms. The lowest quotation (and for what!) was $1,800 a year.

I've just been over in Jersey—the Oranges (East Orange proper, west and south), Newark, Jersey City, Beautiful drives, large towns and a metropolis (Newark) that overshadow the majority of cities in the west. But the friends of mine who live on the outskirts of Newark and work in New York pass three hours a day riding back and forth, usually hanging to a strap and sometimes getting stalled in a tube under the Hudson.

I called on Senator James A. Reed of Missouri at the Baltimore hotel, where he has been quarantined high above the city—and other Democrats. For Governor Smith and New York Democrats put up at the Baltimore.

The senator still is the fiery old soul he was, and insists he is voluntarily retiring from politics and is "one lame duck who isn't lame." He did not run for renomination and therefore retires with the coming in of the new administration next March 4.

"But I haven't lost my interest in the public," he declares.

Besides returning to his law practice in Kansas city, or nationally, rather, it is rumored he intends to write a book on Woodrow Wilson. He won't comment on the matter.

If this, the most ironic man in the senate, should write of the man he so bitterly attacked, Wilsonian Democrats will have a spasm.

Since Al Smith beat him for the Democratic nomination, Reed hasn't been requested to do much speaking. Probably because of an interview he gave at the beginning of the campaign, in which he didn't hesitate to say what he thought of the Republicans. It shocked the suave gentlemen in charge of the present campaign, who preferred arguments with fewer invectives.

Senator Jim is asking a bit. But his white mane bristles and eyes snap as he speaks of the iniquities at Washington and dangers that beset a young Republic such as ours is.

He's for Al Smith all right, but he is poring over blueprints in an oil suit—a caged lion. Yes, he says Al Smith "can be trusted to guard the interests of America." This old lion growing unheeded high up in the Baltimore.

Met one business man from the Pacific coast who said he'd vote for Al Smith if he were on the Republican ticket, but never would vote for a Democrat. I'm not a politician, therefore do not know how to interpret that.

The Theater Guild is getting ready to produce "Faust" and George C. Tyler is rehearsing "Macbeth." Thus the season of theater begins classically. Producers, despite tons of manuscripts, complain few good plays are being written anywhere in the world.

Kellygrams

For years hotels have been competing with one another to provide the ultimate in a guest's comfort. But it is only recently that someone had enough imagination to think of anything so sensible as a telephone extension in the bath room. What is more annoying than to have to get out of the bath tub all dripping, and stand by a wall telephone?

One hotel I saw recently has two telephones in each room, one by the bath tub and the other on a stand by the head of the bed. Excellent places for phones, but think how long it took for hotel men, even hotel men with the best of intentions, to quit putting them on the wall where a guest can't even sit down.

For that matter, it hasn't been many years since phones in private homes were first placed where one could talk and be comfortable all at once.

Now speak, brave Admiral, and say—"

He said: "Sail on! and on!"

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—"The human race certainly does improve," said Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, the world-famous anthropologist, warmly, in answer to my query: "Has man shown no advance?"

As some scientists contend—from the time when he reached the stone-hatchet stage of development, to the present day? Waiving the detail of our so-called modern conveniences, have we stood still, as a species, throughout all the ages?

"Why," continued the doctor, whirling around from his desk in his quarters at the Smithsonian Institution's National museum, "let alone its progress since the earlier pre-historic period, the race has gained ground in the course of historic times—and continues to gain."

"Consider man physically," adjusted the specialist. "He is breaking athletic records constantly. Clearly, in that respect he is improving, even as we watch him."

"And mentally?" "Compare our literature with the ancient Greeks and Romans." "If we except the works of a very few eminent men, in old Rome and Athens, our modern product is far, far superior to the ancients." In contrast with our average, theirs was positively puerile," said the doctor, emphatically.

"Is not the difference due to the wider dissemination of modern education?" I inquired.

"No," rejoined the doctor. "It is due to improved cerebration."

"The average school boy of today is an abler thinker than the average Greek of mature years in the epoch which we speak of as the zenith of Hellenic culture."

"What I want to know, doctor," I interrupted, "is whether or not you can interpret our present presidential campaign as any indication of the human race's progress?"

The distinguished scientist's jaw dropped slightly. "Hm," he observed, plainly somewhat nonplussed.

"I see. You refer to the politician—whose appeal is to the mob?"

He reflected—doubt writ large upon his countenance. It was evident to me that, for the moment, my question had staggered even his confidence in the supposedly infallible code which decrees that "the law of life is progress."

"Never mind the politician," I urged, trying to take it over. "I want to know whether or not you can interpret our present presidential campaign as any indication of the human race's progress?"

"Yes," he observed, plainly somewhat nonplussed.

"I see. You refer to the politician—whose appeal is to the mob?"

He chuckled. "What is the matter with you, anyhow. I am not a snake at all. Did you ever happen to see a snake with a beak, tell me that now? And did you ever hear of a snake sitting upon a tree trunk waiting for a fish to swim by so he could grab it?"

Look again, old chap. Don't you recognize me? I am Darter, your old channel chum, and many are the tidbits that you and I have devoured in company.

"I am sorry I scared you, but that is a fault of mine. I frighten on my very best friends without meaning to. That is what one gets when one has a head like mine."

"But after all, it is sort of fun to be half a bird and half a snake—you can fly when you are like and crawl when you are tired out; in both the air and water you are at home, and that is more than most birds can say!"

"Long before the fellow had stopped speaking Cormorant had gotten over his fright and was laughing heartily at himself for being so frightened."

for two months—I am on my way home now—there are few things in the world that I have not seen, but if any one had ever told me in that short time that I should not remember the face of an old chum as soon as I saw it, I would have screamed in his face. How are you, anyhow? And how is Mrs. Darter?"

"Very well, thanks, but just working herself for such taking care of the fledglings. Come over and have dinner with us. She will be delighted to see you and there is plenty to eat. I have had fine luck at fishing today." Twisting and turning the fellow wriggled out of the water and crawled upon a stump and Cormorant settled down beside him.

"Thanks very much, Darter," said he. "Nothing would suit me better than to dine with you, but to tell you the truth I am in a hurry to get home, so I guess I'll not stop today. Do stop darning your head about like that. First your bill is here and then it is there and you move so quickly that it makes me dizzy."

Central Determined To Beat Piqua High Eleven

COACH WILSON DRIVES SQUAD HARD FOR CONTEST SATURDAY

Believes Team Has Plenty Of Strength That Must Be Brought Out In First League Game; Cutler To Referee.

Grim determination—determination to defeat Piqua High School in the inaugural Miami Valley League game of the season—is written on the countenances of members of the Xenia Central High School football squad this week as they prepare for the Piqua invasion of the Blue and White stronghold Saturday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Coach Walter L. "Pinky" Wilson is driving the players at a fast pace this week and the practice regimens have continued far into the hours of darkness.

Xenia's eleven this year has plenty of potential strength which is yet to be revealed in an actual game. Coach Wilson was dissatisfied with the offensive in the O. S. and S. O. Home contest and is seeking to polish it up this week. The backfield showed possibilities of a sustained attack but too frequently fumbled mitigated against the team's chances when it was in a position to score.

However, these mistakes are expected to be missing in the Piqua contest and if the backfield can hold on to the ball, Piqua may be given something to worry about.

RESERVES WILL END SEASON SUNDAY; TO PLAY SPRINGFIELD

Reserves will close one of the most successful seasons in the history of Xenia independent baseball Sunday afternoon, meeting an all-star nine from Springfield, which will play under the name of the Kibler Clothiers.

Announcement is made that the closing game of the season will start at 2:30 o'clock instead of 3 o'clock.

Although playing under the name of the Kiblers, the Springfield nine will not be recognized as the team which played the Reserves three games this season.

The visiting team will have in its lineup picked players from various minor leagues in all parts of the country that have closed their diamond seasons.

With a record of twenty-three victories and only three defeats, the Reserves hope to close the season in winning fashion.

Either Don Clark or Sam Herman, both Dayton hurlers, will be on the mound for the Reserves, probably the former.

Clark pitched the McCall's team of Dayton to the Class AAA championship of the National Industrial Baseball Association by defeating the Checker Cab nine of Detroit, 6 to 4, in the third and deciding game of the title series at Detroit last Monday and expects to return home Saturday.

Bowling

The McDowell and Torrence Lumber Co. bowling team replaced the Lang Transfers in fourth place in the Recreation League by winning the odd game in three from the tail-end Lang Chevrolet Co. Thursday night. Bill Horner had an even 600 series for the losers.

JOHNSON MAY MANAGE OLD TEAM IN 1929

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Oct. 12.—Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Washington Senators and manager of the Newark Bears of the International League, refused to affirm or deny today claims of his friends that he is slated to fill Stanley Bucky Harris' shoes as manager of the Washington American League baseball team.

Johnson was enroute to New York after a short visit with his mother, three brothers and a sister.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, will sign Walter Johnson, former Nat pitcher, to manage the club next year if he can obtain his release from the Newark club of the International League, he said today.

GERMAN AUTO CLUB MEMBERS WILL PASS THROUGH CITY SOON

Enroute to Cincinnati, where they will be luncheon guests at the Hotel Gibson, one hundred and forty men and women, representing towns and cities throughout Germany, and who are members of the Allgemeiner Deutscher Automobil-Club, will pass through Xenia sometime next Monday morning.

The exact time of the arrival of the delegation in Xenia has not been learned here. The German club is one of the largest automobile clubs in Europe and they are taking greetings to Cincinnati and other cities in the United States from their native land.

The tour of America is being handled by guides and assistants detailed by the American Automobile Association.

In the party of visitors are Carl Fritz, president of the club; Ewald Kroth, vice president and sport manager; Paul Jockel, member of the general sport committee; Johannes Hopken, representing the North German Lloyd Line; Engelbert Strehle, employee of the German Automobile Club.

The staff representing the American Automobile Association includes Jerry D. Ryan, in charge; Miss Marie Achstetter, Miss Jennie Aronstein, H. B. Whitman, and Al Oltmans.

The delegation of German motorists includes twenty women.

FEDERAL JURY WILL IGNORE DEATH WAVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Denied the aid of the federal prohibition enforcement machine, New York must find its own way of stopping the poison liquor wave that has taken twenty-four lives in the past few days.

The government, through a federal grand jury, refused to help solve the problem because it was not within the scope of the Volstead act.

"Inasmuch as wood alcohol is not a beverage but a recognized poison (analogous to Prussic acid or iodine) and its use is not regulated by any of the federal laws, we respectfully report that in these particular instances the subject matter is for the consideration of the state authorities," the grand jury reported.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora admittedly was not pleased by the situation. He had heretofore considered all intoxicating beverages, whether they contained wood alcohol or not, as within the jurisdiction of the prohibition department, he said.

WILBERFORCE GRID TEAM OFF THURSDAY FOR LINCOLN GAME

The Wilberforce University football squad, twenty-five strong, departed early Thursday for Jefferson City, Mo., where an inter-sectional game with Lincoln University will be played Saturday afternoon. Many rooters accompanied the team on the trip.

The players making the trip are mostly second-stringers since the varsity will conserve its energies for the more important inter-sectional struggle with Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn. October 20.

Lincoln University is not rated as a strong opponent and an easy victory is anticipated.

Coach Graves is not taking any chances on the first team players receiving injuries that would keep them out of the Fisk game next week.

At least four regulars at present are laid up with minor hurts. Slater, giant tackle, has water on the knee; Lewis, guard, has a bad rash over the eye; Clark, tackle, is also on the shelf, and Ward, halfback, is having trouble with his knee.

Attorney Pope Gregg, Washington, C. H., was appointed by Governor Donahue to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Charles A. Reid, as common pleas judge of Fayette County, it was announced Friday.

Attorney Gregg is a Republican and is a member of the law firm of Gregg and Patton. He has practiced law in Fayette County forty-one years.

CENTRAL HIGH PRINCIPAL MADE MIAMI VALLEY LOOP OFFICER

B. F. Weiss, principal of Troy High School, was elected president of the Miami Valley High School Athletic League for the ensuing year at a meeting of league representatives at Piqua Tuesday night.

Principal F. R. Woodruff, of Xenia Central High School, was elected vice-president and Raymond Wilson, Piqua, secretary.

Xenia will only have one league game at home next season according to the 1929 football schedule for the organization, approved at the meeting.

The single home game is with Sidney, to be played here November 23. The remaining four games will be played at Xenia, Piqua, Greensburg, Greenville and Troy will be played in the order named away from home.

By a unanimous agreement of the coaches, the league went on record as not being opposed to scouting. It was agreed that the scouting of games will be permitted but that the secret scouting of practice sessions of the teams will be prohibited.

League officials also passed a resolution that all teams must pay their own traveling expenses.

The four fraternities, Alpha Phi Alpha, Kappa Alpha Psi, Omega Psi Phi and Phi Beta Sigma, have each given "smokers" for the men freshmen students. Hikes and various parties for the freshmen have been sponsored by the three sororities, Delta Sigma Theta, Alpha Kappa Alpha and Beta Phi Beta.

The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. also gave an acquaintance social for members of the incoming class last week.

JOHNSON MAY MANAGE OLD TEAM IN 1929

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Oct. 12.—Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Washington Senators and manager of the New York Yankees of the International League, refused to affirm or deny today claims of fans for a Xenia victory. Accordingly, the Central High mentor is whipping up his line with more gusto than ever.

Saturday's game will start at 2:30 o'clock. H. G. Cutler, Ohio State University, will referee the contest. A. E. Richards, of Pittsburgh, now a Cedarville druggist, will umpire, and Paul Fuller, this city, will be head linesman.

Two factors enter into the prediction that the largest crowd of the season should witness the contest. In the first place it is the only Saturday game on the schedule and in the second place it will probably be Xenia's most important home game this season.

FEDERAL JURY WILL IGNORE DEATH WAVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Denied the aid of the federal prohibition enforcement machine, New York must find its own way of stopping the poison liquor wave that has taken twenty-four lives in the past few days.

The government, through a federal grand jury, refused to help solve the problem because it was not within the scope of the Volstead act.

"Inasmuch as wood alcohol is not a beverage but a recognized poison (analogous to Prussic acid or iodine) and its use is not regulated by any of the federal laws, we respectfully report that in these particular instances the subject matter is for the consideration of the state authorities rather than the federal authorities," the grand jury reported.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora admitted was not pleased by the situation. He had heretofore considered all intoxicating beverages whether they contained wood alcohol or not, as within the jurisdiction of the prohibition department, he said.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

In the church as in the world, money is a motive power. The same difficulties that embarrass us beset the early churches and here we find Paul wrestling with the money question.

Vs. 1-4.—These abounded in liberality in their deep poverty and great affliction. It was the self-sacrificing liberality of these poor Macedonians that moved Paul to appeal to the richer Corinthians to do likewise. Giving is not a matter left to our personal taste and convenience but it is a fundamental principle of Christian character and life. In conversion the pocketbook must go along with the man that owns it. Christian joy brings Christian giving; if it doesn't, it isn't.

Vs. 5-6.—"First they gave their own selves to the Lord." Here is the secret of their giving—their love. Giving is not a matter of mere generosity and blossomed. God wants this gift from us first, for when he gets this he will easily get all things else.

V. 7.—"See that ye abound in this grace also." As the Corinthians abounded in other graces, so Paul urged them to abound in this grace of liberality also. The first duty of a critic is to see good points and commend them. No number of virtues is enough as long as any one virtue is missing. There are many one-sided ill proportioned Christians. The Christian ideal is to attain "unto a full-grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Vs. 8, 9.—"Proving... the sincerity also of your love." Paul desired to test their love by their liberality. Mere talk is cheap; it is the deed that counts. Christ is our ideal at every point. He asks us to give ourselves to him and to love others, but he first loved us and gave himself for us. It all reads as though Paul were writing to a modern congregation and urging them to make up their deficit with the church treasurer.

Vs. 6, 7.—"God loveth a cheerful giver." Yes, a giver that shouts and throws his hat up in giving. We have not penetrated into the secret of giving until we have discovered through experience that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Vs. 15.—"Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift." God's gift of Christ to the world is unspeakably great, unspeakably precious and glorious. Through 2000 years men have been trying in vain to praise it adequately.

WOULD YOU ADVISE ELIMINATING THE OFFICE OF SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT WHEN A FULL TIME RELIGIOUS EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR IS EMPLOYED? The work of the religious educational director is similar to that of the superintendent of a public school system. As such, he should be recognized as the head of all educational work. The superintendent is not only unnecessary but is often a handicap when there is an official educational director since it results in the condition that there are two leaders attempting to administer the affairs of the school. This means a duplication of effort and minimizes the efficiency of the educational director.

WHAT IS THE BEST METHOD OF HOLDING THE YOUNG PEOPLE FOR THE EVENING SERVICE? Much depends on the interest and work of the pastor. If he is an inspiration to his young people, they are apt to follow his leadership and suggestions. It may be helpful to plan the evening service with the young people having a prominent part such as a young people's ushering group, a junior choir, a special quartet composed of young people, the reading of the Scriptures and the psalter by one of the younger folk. The problem is one of the most difficult the pastor must solve.

An orphan boy, quite athletic, tried out in his first year at college for the football team but failed; he was given a place on the scrub team. He played well and felt certain that he could make the team the second year, but was again disappointed.

Undaunted in his efforts, he again played with the scrub team and made a fine record. He felt certain he would be accepted the third year, but not so.

Without a murmur, he again played with the second team. He enlisted in the World War and stated in the blank to be filled out that in case of his death he wanted his body interred in the cemetery of his alma mater.

He met death and his body was shipped to the college for burial. Over his grave a monument was erected upon which were inscribed these words: "He played four years with the scrubs—but he never quit." —D. Carl Yoder.

The Better Way

George Washington in his farewell address gave utterance to a policy of reverence for the old with readiness for the new which is practical today. He speaks with equal emphasis to those Americans who claim the right to choose which of our constitutional provisions they shall recognize as binding, and those others, only less numerous who assume that "the last word and the final good" were declared unto mankind in 1778.

George Washington said, "The government, the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted on full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers, uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support."

"Respect for its authority, compliance with its laws, acquiescence with its measures are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true liberty. The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitutions of government. But the constitution which at any time exists, till changed by the explicit and authentic act of the people is sacredly obligatory upon all." —D. Carl Yoder.

Dr. S. Parks Cadman in a recent Sunday afternoon radio address said, "The vital qualities of genuine civilization are courage, power, discipline and love; these four and the greatest of these is love. Courage to attempt, power to achieve, discipline to safeguard the achievement and love to crown the process with double meaning and efficiency."

These four qualities are spiritual forces and are imparted to individuals on well defined conditions as outlined in the examples and teachings of Christ.

The church sponsors the teachings of the Lord and points out the true way of living. Our civilization is dependent upon the concerted action of individuals in whom are found Christian courage, power, discipline and love. WHY NOT GO TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Religious Education-Church Service

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

In the church as in the world, money is a motive power. The same difficulties that embarrass us beset the early churches and here we find Paul wrestling with the money question.

Vs. 1-4.—These abundant in liberality in their deep poverty and great affliction. It was the self-sacrificing liberality of these poor Macedonians that moved Paul to appeal to the richer Corinthians to do likewise. Giving is not a matter left to our personal taste and convenience but it is a fundamental principle of Christian character and life. In conversion the pocketbook must go along with the man that owns it. Christian joy brings Christian giving; if it doesn't, it isn't.

Vs. 5-9.—"First they gave their own selves to the Lord." Here is the secret of their giving—the root out of which all their noble generosity grew and blossomed. God wants this gift from us first, for when he gets this he will easily get all things else.

Vs. 10-14.—"See that ye abound in this grace also." As the Corinthians abounded in other graces, so Paul urged them to abound in this grace of liberality also. The first duty of a critic is to see good points and commend them. No number of virtues is enough as long as any one virtue is missing. There are many one-sided ill proportioned Christians. The Christian ideal is to attain "unity a full-grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Vs. 15-17.—"Proving... the sincerity also of your love." Paul desired to test their love by their liberality. Mere talk is cheap; it is the deed that counts. Christ is our ideal at every point. He asks us to give ourselves to him and to love others, but he first loved us and gave himself for us. It all reads as though Paul were writing to a modern congregation and urging them to make up their deficit with the church treasurer.

Vs. 18-20.—"God loveth a cheerful giver." Yes, a giver that shouts and throws his hat up in giving. We have not penetrated into the secret of giving until we have discovered through experience that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Vs. 21-23.—"Thanks be to God for his unsearchable gift." God's gift of Christ to the world is unsearchable great, unspeakably precious and glorious. Through 2000 years men have been trying in vain to praise it adequately.

WOULD YOU ADVISE ELIMINATING THE OFFICE OF SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT WHEN A FULL TIME RELIGIOUS EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR IS EMPLOYED?

The work of the religious educational director is similar to that of the superintendent of a public school system. As such, he should be recognized as the head of all educational work. The superintendent is not only unnecessary but is often a handicap when there is an official educational director since it results in the condition that there are two leaders attempting to administer the affairs of the school. This means a duplication of effort and minimizes the efficiency of the educational director.

WHAT IS THE BEST METHOD OF HOLDING THE YOUNG PEOPLE FOR THE EVENING SERVICE? Much depends on the interest and work of the pastor. If he is an inspiration to his young people, they are apt to follow his leadership and suggestions. It may be helpful to plan the evening service with the young people having a prominent part such as a young people's ushering group, a junior choir, a special quartette composed of young people, the reading of the Scriptures and the psalter by one of the younger folk. The problem is one of the most difficult the pastor must solve.

Home Education

An orphan boy, quite athletic, tried out in his first year at college for the football team but failed; he was given a place on the scrub team. He played well and felt certain that he could make the team the second year, but was again disappointed.

Undaunted in his efforts, he again played with the scrub team and made a fine record. He felt certain he would be accepted the third year, but not so.

Without a murmur, he again played with the second team. He enlisted in the World War and stated in the blank to be filled out that in case of his death he wanted his body interred in the cemetery of his alma mater.

He met death and his body was shipped to the college for burial. Over his grave a monument was erected upon which were inscribed these words: "He played four years with the scrubs—but he never quit." —D. Carl Yoder.

1. Why do churches have their members make annual pledges?

2. What are the returns of stewardship to the steward?

3. Why should Christians give one tenth?

4. What does anyone really own?

5. Is it not harder to give systematically than to give haphazardly? Why?

BOOK REVIEW

THE TECHNIQUE OF PUBLIC WORSHIP by Odgers and Schultz. Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati. $2.00 is a very suggestive volume in which the authors talk freely about our church worship, why we have it, what we mean by it, how we do it, and how it may be done better, assuming that there is room for improvement.

THE CONFESSIONS OF A PUZZLED PARSON by Bishop Charles Fiske, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City. $2.00 discusses with charity, wit and sense many of the social questions of the day as they relate to the church. "Complicated Marriages," "The Church's Loss of Prestige," "Bringing in the Millenium," etc.

He speaks with equal emphasis to those Americans who claim the right to choose which of our constitutional provisions they shall recognize as binding, and those others, only less numerous who assume that "the last word and the final good" were declared unto mankind in 1778.

George Washington said, "The government, the offspring of your own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted on full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers, uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and your support."

TWO FIRES IMPRESS PREVENTION WEEK ON XENIA CITIZENS

Two fire alarms Thursday, No. 102 and 103 so far this year, impressed Xenia citizens with the importance of "Fire Prevention Week."

Spontaneous combustion resulted in a dump fire at Little and Orange Sts. at 4:25 p. m. No damage.

Burning leaves resulted in a summons for the fire department on W. Church St., near the King St. intersection, at 9:15 p. m. The pile of leaves in the gutter had been set on fire. There was no damage.

Fire prevention, according to Fire Chief William Hanifan, is a matter of individual responsibility and education. Safety to life, safety to property and peace of mind are the reward.

The chief points out that smoking, and the careless use of matches, last year cost the people of this country nearly thirty million dollars in fire loss.

An ounce of fire prevention is worth a pound of fire extinguishment, he declares.

ROSIKA'S DIVORCE RUMOR DENIED

Rumors of separation, divorce and alimony in six figures between Rosika Dolly, above, of the internationally-known Dolly sisters, and her multi-millionaire husband of a year, Mortimer Davis, have been spiked by the dancer's sister, Jenny, and friends of the couple at Paris, France. The rumors followed Rosika's refusal to accompany her husband on a trip to Canada to settle the $150,000,000 estate of his father, the late Sir Mortimer Davis.

Sold Love Philters

Bandit Writes Book

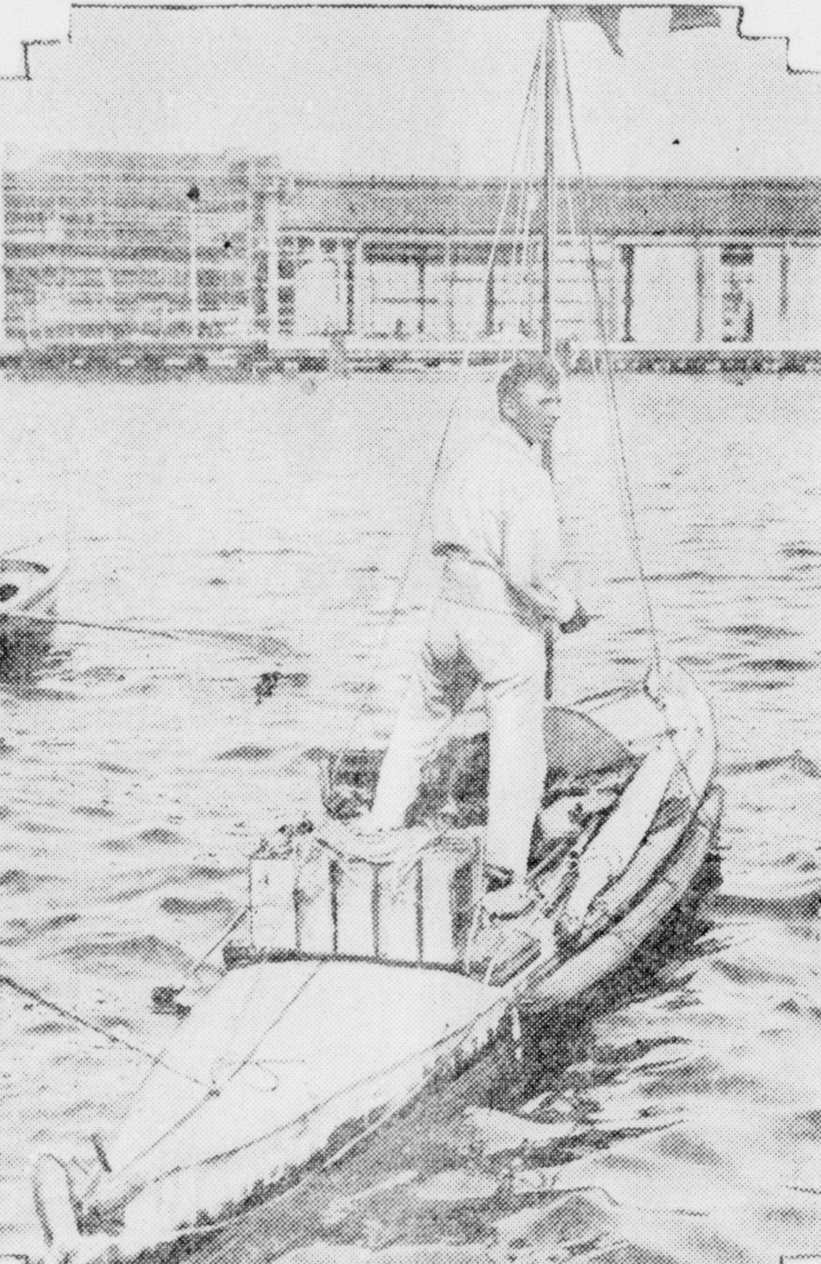

Robert J. Tasker, alias the "broken-gun" bandit, who has completed a best selling novel during his incarceration in San Quentin Prison. The author got his nickname from his last holdup in Oakland, where he "broke" his revolver before calling upon victim to "stick 'em up" in order to be sure he wouldn't hurt anybody.

MOVIE STAR ADMITS ROMANCE

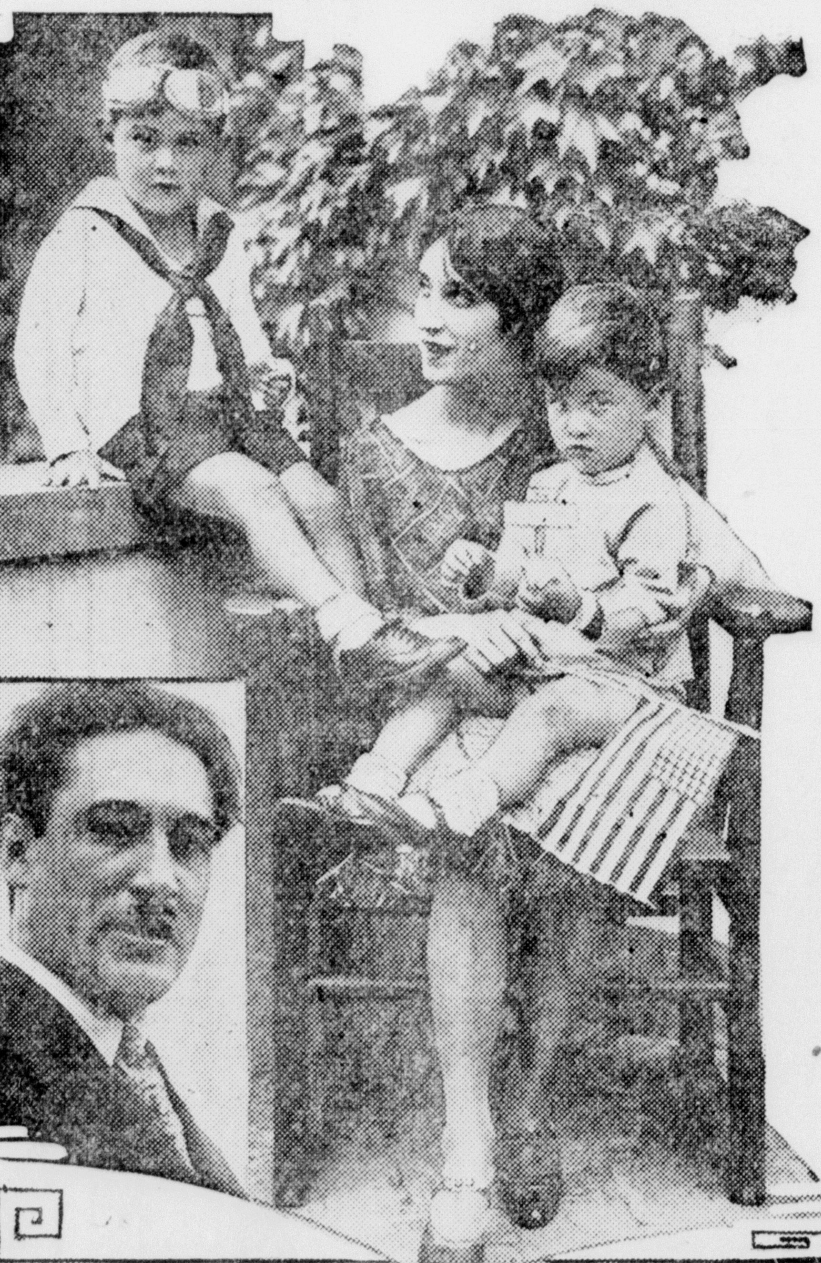

Sue Carol, "Wampus baby" film star of 1928, admits she found romance in Venice, Cal., this summer, where she made a picture—romance in the person of Nick Stuart, also of the movies. However, the pair must wait to be married until the prospective groom obtains his freedom in the divorce court.

Crosses Ocean in Open Boat

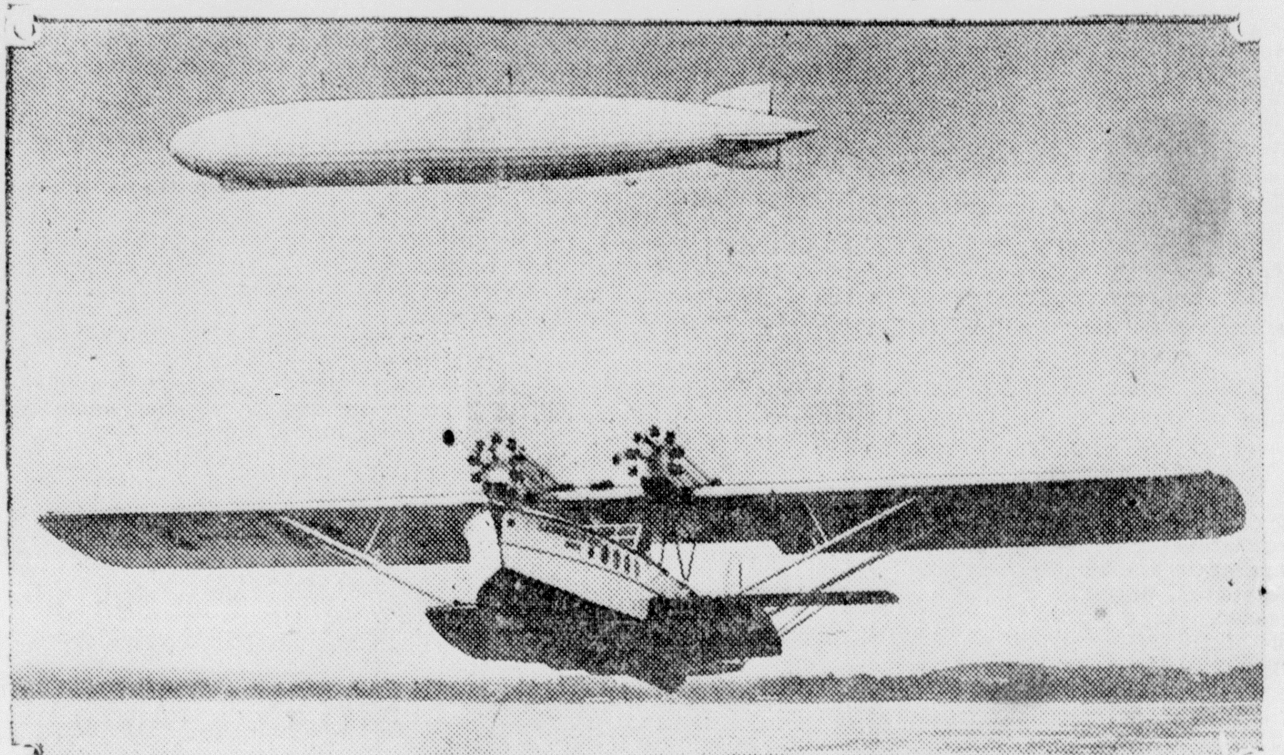

Successfully riding out recent hurricane in the West Indies, Capt. Franz Romer, intrepid German, brought his 30-foot boat into harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico. He reported encountering mountainous seas. Photo shows him arriving in West Indian port.

Rift Threatens Acosta Romance

Bert Acosta (inset), playboy of aviation, admits a romantic interest in another woman and says he will marry her if he can obtain a divorce. But Mrs. Acosta, shown above with her two children, Bert, Jr., and Allen, says she won't agree to a decree—even to please Bert. And that's that.

Two Leviathans of the Air

This extraordinary photo shows the super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin and the new four-engined Dornier-Wahl in simultaneous test flights near Friedrichshafen, the giant lighter-than-air being caught by the camera in such a way as to make it appear smaller than the seaplane. The Dornier-Wahl has a wing spread of 100 feet and an over-all length of 80 feet. The Graf Zeppelin is expected to take off soon for her Atlantic crossing.

Campaign Portrait

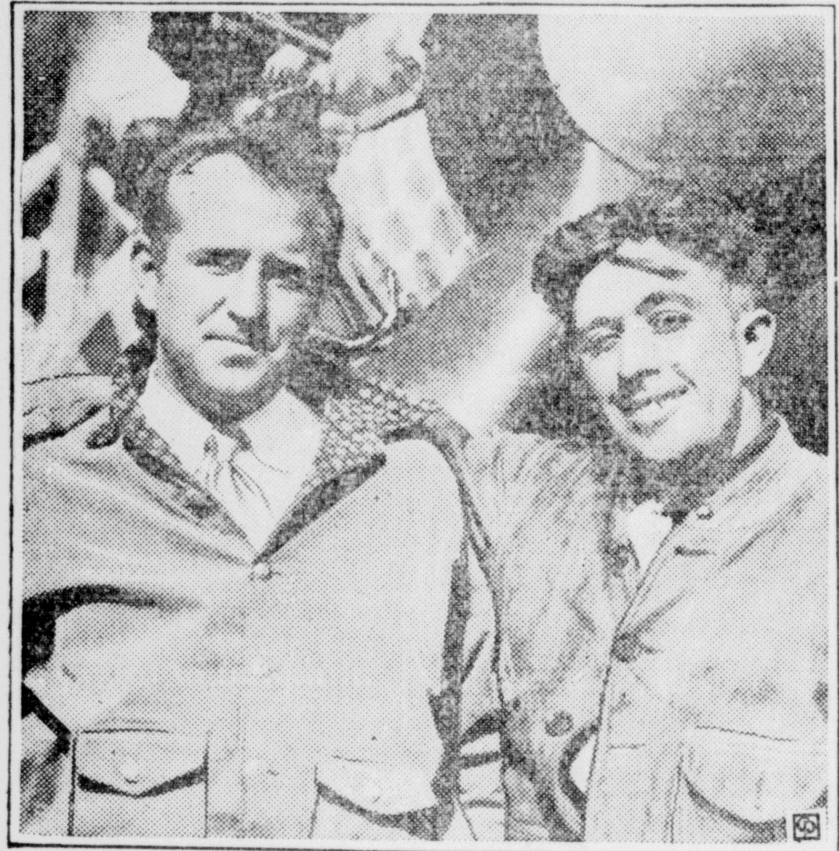

Personally selected by Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, as the official campaign portrait of himself, this crayon drawing by John Doctoroff was done at Mr. Hoover's Palo Alto home.

CONFER ON HOOVER STRATEGY

SETS NEW PLANE ALTITUDE RECORD

Despite the fact that he set a new altitude record for commercial cabin planes by ascending to 24,100 feet when he was forced down by lack of oxygen at San Diego, Cal., Pilot Bill Monday, shown here, plans to make another attempt, taking along a barograph and oxygen tanks and rising as high as the plane will go.

Skippers of Two Biggest Aircraft

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and Commander Rosendahl, U. S. The American naval officer will accompany Dr. Eckener when the Graf Zeppelin starts on its trans-Atlantic flight.

MOST YOUTHFUL ILLINOIS PORTIA

Miss Leah C. Stone, 21, is believed to be Illinois' youngest woman lawyer. She was graduated from John Marshall law school, Chicago, paying her way through school by working in a law office and supporting her family at the same time.

Trio With the Same Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDonald, who were married on their joint birthday, Aug. 16, a year ago, have been blessed with a baby daughter, also born on that date. The McDonalds claim that this greatly simplifies observance of family anniversaries.

SHE KEPT SMITH WAITING AT DOOR

Rose Fallon, New York's "flower queen," is probably the only woman who ever kept Governor Alfred E. Smith waiting at the door for admittance. Smith called upon Miss Fallon and her husband, George Van Namee, Smith's former secretary, and had to wait a half hour for admittance because the doorbell had become disconnected. Miss Fallon and Van Namee are shown above in one of her flower shops.

SHE KEPT SMITH WAITING AT DOOR

Rose Fallon, New York's "flower queen," is probably the only woman who ever kept Governor Alfred E. Smith waiting at the door for admittance. Smith called upon Miss Fallon and her husband, George Van Namee, Smith's former secretary, and had to wait a half hour for admittance because the doorbell had become disconnected. LETTER PAINTS PICTURE OF FLORIDA STORM DEVASTATION

A picture of the hurricane-stricken section of Florida is painted in a letter received here by Mrs. Mina Bentley, 530 W. Second St., from a granddaughter at Lake Worth, Fla., which was in the path of the storm.

The writer's family took refuge in the Gulf Stream Hotel when the hurricane gave warning, because it is steel-constructed. While refugees were huddled in the building, it was swept by the force of the storm.

"The windows had all blown out and the wind was sweeping through," she said. "The large hanging lamp shades in the lobby would swing around and finally go crashing against the wall. Then the big water tank on the top of the hotel fell down the elevator shaft and you can imagine the crash. I can't describe to you the horror of it all, standing there in the dark with the injured all around you and listening to the wind screaming through the lobby and wet from the spray and gushes of water and wind would blow in. . . . They dug people down under the buildings and there were times when they had to crawl like snakes for they didn't dare lift their bodies from the ground for fear of being blown away. . . . I shall never forget the picture I saw the next morning when I looked down the broad stairway. The large lobby floor covered with water and glass, the beautiful furniture turned topsy turvy and tables and chairs full of injured. It surely was a pitiful sight. We all stayed at the hotel working like dogs for the week after the storm, serving meals to the refugees that were without homes, families and food. About Tuesday they began bringing them in from Lake Okeechobee, the region that is the farming district of Florida. The water was up as high as fifteen feet in some places there. The few that were left came in covered with mud and wet, all in a dazed condition for hardly a whole family was left. When the workers went out to bring the people in out of the water they had to shut the engines off of their boats and push the bodies out of the way. The people had to hang on to whatever they could find and watch their loved ones float away, and wait without food for days until they could be rescued.

"At the end of the week we came home. God was certainly with us for our home is about one of six in Lake Worth that was not seriously damaged. Of course we had rather a great deal of damage done by the water, for in some places the plaster is falling and the inside will have to be redecorated but outside of a few other minor things, such as broken windows and screens, we should be thankful. In Lake Worth there are 600 homes that are a total wreck and 2,000

"Everyone now is just going along smiling and to look at the faces you could never tell that most of them were left without a thing in the world. But everyone is going along and being busy trying to help the other fellow or to find food and shelter for his family. . . .

"Last Sunday they held the services for those buried in the cemetery in West Palm Beach. There are 640 buried in one grave and it is claimed to be the largest grave in the world. Now they are burning them for the bodies are becoming so decayed that it is impossible to move them and they are finding them every day. . . .

"We are not ever going to go through another one of these for they give you plenty of warning before hand but everyone stays, thinking that it won't be so bad. That is the bad part of them—you have so long to dread them before they come."

HOOVER ALPHABET

By Mabel F. Martin

FARMERS: Hoover Has Given Them Practical Help

"No living man," says a great authority, "has done so much, practically, for the American farmer, to help his prices and enlarge his markets, as Herbert Hoover has done. December 31, 1918, the Allies cancelled all their orders for American pork. America was producing a surplus of four hundred million pounds of pork a month under price agreements with the Allies. If the packers bought hogs without a contract, they would go bankrupt. If the packers did not buy, the farmers would go bankrupt. Meanwhile, in Central Europe, people were starving for lack of the very food our farmers could not get rid of. Hoover won a remarkable diplomatic victory, when he induced the Allied governments to relax their blockade and permit our farmers to market their surplus. His farm relief plans are born of a knowledge of farm problems."

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. ©1928

The little yellow house never showed its true dinginess because Mrs. Milburn refused to let anyone see it. Her love transformed it to a shining palace where sacrificing devotion made everything out of nothing. Emmy, the only daughter, wanted to lift herself from the sordidness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party, given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by Grandmother Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the life she determined never to sink into. One day Emmy met once more the man who looked like Robb. She remembered their first meeting at the ice skating rink. He had taken her home. Her mother had said, "Never make yourself even a little cheap and common, Emmy."

Emmy learns that the man is going with her cousin, Marianna. Robb again tells Emmy that he loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

Robb picked up his hat and overcoat from the chair where he had laid them. There was a look that was neither sullenness nor anger in his face.

"Robb, you're cross!" Emmy said, putting both of her hands on his shoulders. "Just because I asked you to be friends—just because I asked you to be sensible."

He gave her one straight look from his dark eyes.

"What's the use of pretending?" he asked bluntly. "We can't be friends. At least I can't, Emmy. I'm in love with you, don't you understand?" He was standing close to her and she could feel how he trembled.

"I don't know what you want," he said. "You tell me you won't marry a poor man and live in Flower Street. Now, I come to you with a new job and plenty of money to take you out of Flower Street, and still you won't say you'll marry me. You want me to be 'sensible'—"

His voice broke on a groan, and before she could stop him he was gone.

The front door slammed behind him.

"I'm sorry Robb couldn't stay for supper," said Mrs. Milburn, coming out of the dining room. Behind her the round table was set with the whitest of tablecloths and decorated with the thickest of Christmas trees.

"But I'm glad you've patched up your quarrel with him. It's nice to have him around the house again. With Perry married and your father and Dan gone so much, the place does get a bit lonely sometimes."

Well, I suppose you'll be the next one to marry and go, Emmy. She sighed.

"Yes, I'll be the next one to go," Emmy thought, going up the stairs, "but I won't be because I'm getting married."

Outside the windows of her small white bedroom the stars winked and blinked. Robb had said she was like them—Far above him.

"I'm not," Emmy said to herself, with her eyes on them. "I'm not half so fine as he is."

She was full of twisted feelings about him. But she had no doubt of his fineness. Brought up in an orphan asylum in Pearl Street, he had started life in the lowliest of jobs at Mr. Tello's woolen mill. He had studied nights, he had worked hard, and he had made something of himself, with no one to help him so straight ahead.

She knew that. But she wasn't sure that she wanted him. She was pretty sure that she did not want him.

She wanted things. Things that the wife of a two-hundred-dollar-a-month man never could have. Never.

"Robb hasn't enough to offer me. That's the long and short of it," she summed it up.

And, standing there at the small white-curtained window, her grandmother's words seemed to write themselves once more in the stars for her: "Marry not for money, but marry where money is."

She crossed the hall to the bathroom to wash the day's grime from her face and neck. No hot water, of course. Cheap thin towels. The same old V-shaped crack in the washbowl that had been there for years and years. The iron rack for the oil lamp. (The gas and electricity had been turned off yesterday because the bills had not been paid for two months.)

Emmy's big gray eyes, with the velvety ring of black around the iris, were filled with discontent as they swept the little place. That look deepened as she picked up her lamp and started down the stairs.

"Robb, you're cross!"

"Loving with Robb would be only a cut above this," she thought; "and not much of a cut, at that."

In the dining room Mrs. Milburn was setting a ring of red tene at store candles around the tiny Christmas tree on the table. Behind her on the sideboard the Dying Gladiator lamp shone with a clear, rosy light.

Emmy banged her own lamp down beside it.

"I hate the thought of Perry bringing Lovey to this house to-night, with all these wretched lamps and candles strewn around," she said. "I hate outsiders to know how we live—and Lovey does seem an outsider, doesn't she? This place certainly is the absolute limit. No lights. No hot water unless you carry it upstairs to the bathroom. It's like living in the Middle Ages!"

Her sullen, angry eyes, met the clear blue intenseness of Mrs. Milburn's as she looked up from her candles.

"Nonsense, Emmy!" she answered. "If you were invited to the most beautiful country homes in England today, do you know what you'd do? Every night you'd carry a candle upstairs to your room when you went to bed, and every morning when you woke up the maid would bring you a copper can of hot water. That's what!"

"How do you know?" Emmy's voice was as sullen as her eyes.

Mrs. Milburn shrugged her little shoulders. "How do I know anything? How do I know that there are diamonds in Australia and Eskimos up around the North Pole? Because I read about these things, of course, Emmy!" she said briskly.

She came around the table and looked up into Emmy's face. "My dear, don't you be unhappy and discontented. Even if we haven't hot water and electric lights, think of the things we do have!"

"What have we?" asked Emmy. "We haven't anything that other people have. We haven't a telephone. We haven't a car. We haven't the simple necessities that these people all around us have."

Her mother interrupted her gently. "Yes, but we have a wonderful Steinway piano, and we have hundreds of good books. We have solid silver forks and spoons, and we have beautiful hand-carved bedsteads and dressers upstairs."

Prince Elope?

Another romance threatens the royal household of Roumania with the report from Bucharest that Prince Nicholas, above, brother of Prince Carol, who forsook the Roumanian throne for the love of Mme. Lupescu, has eloped with the beautiful Roumanian aristocrat, Mme. Dumitrescu Tahan. The prince, who is a member of the regency of three, is said to have wired Queen Marie that he will never return to Roumania.

The Theater

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—The 1928-29 social season was ushered in with the first Mayfair dance 'toter eve at the Biltmore Hotel. Hollywood's six hundred partook of sustenance and refreshments and checked up on any romantic developments that may have occurred during the obscure summer months.

Little mental electricity annoyed the guests. A salute to the sturdy not to say robust endurance of matrimony was made when Fred Niblo, president of the Mayfair club, presented a candied cake to Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg on the celebration of their first anniversary.

Louise Brooks and Eddie Sutherland were sitting at separate tables this year. Last Mayfair dance they were married. Divorce has legalized their freedom now. Buster Collier was with Brooks

Phyllis Haver came with Bert Lytell. Phil said the first time they went out together they dined at the Russian Art Club. The next day a reporter telephoned to ask if she was engaged to Mr. Lytell. Bert contended he was willing, but Phyllis merely laughed.

Claire Windsor, formerly married to Lytell, was with a party of friends. Clarence Brown and Dorothy Sebastian, his fiancée, were in Irving Thalberg's party, as were also Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard. Ona Brown, the former Mrs. Clarence, came with her own crowd, among whom was the lad from Pittsburgh to whom she is engaged.

Elsie, the Cedarville mare owned by Don Kyle and campaigned by Frank Hedrick on the grand circuit, won a 2:10 pace for a $10,000 purse at Lexington, Ky.

The first dividend ever paid on the preferred stock of the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. was paid last week by the board of directors of the corporation.

SALLY'S SALLIES

May McAvoy was with Eddie. At least they danced together steadily. May looks very well these days. Likewise Eddie, who is pleased to begin directing Bebe Daniels in her new picture.

Bebe Daniels, incidentally, had a large party. Gary Cooper, I think, escorted her. Lowell Sherman and Betty Francisco were in Evelyn Brent's party. Pauline Garon, who is still Mrs. Sherman, was not present.

Tom Mix brought Lupe Valez. They left, along with Billie Dove and Irvin Willat, Sally O'Neill and her escort, Molly O'Day and hers, about two thirty. Lupe wasn't at all keen to leave, but she was a good scout about it. William DeMille and his new bride, Clara Beranger, were with a group of friends, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edson.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

The Theater

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—The 1928-29 social season was ushered in with the first Mayfair dance tother eve at the Biltmore Hotel. Hollywood's six hundred partook of sustenance and refreshments and checked up on any romantic developments that may have occurred during the obscure summer months.

Little mental electricity annoyed the guests. A salute to the sturdy not to say robust endurance of matrimony was made when Fred Niblo, president of the Mayfair club, presented a candied cake to Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg on the celebration of their first anniversary.

Louise Brooks and Eddie Sutherland were sitting at separate tables this year. Last Mayfair dance they were married. Divorce has legalized their freedom now. Buster Collier was with Brooks.

Phyllis Haver came with Bert Lytell. Phil said the first time they went out together they dined at the Russian Art Club. The next day a reporter telephoned to ask if she was engaged to Mr. Lytell. Bert contended he was willing, but Phyllis merely laughed.

Claire Windsor, formerly married to Lytell, was with a party of friends. Clarence Brown and Dorothy Sebastian, his fiancée, were also Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard. Ona Brown, the former Mrs. Clarence, came with her own crowd, among whom was the lad from Pittsburgh to whom she is engaged.

Xenia Resident So Nervous She Could Not Hold Cup of Coffee—Konjola Brought Almost Immediate Relief

Seems like the seeming wonders accomplished by Konjola will never cease, judging from the reports of recoveries made to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 E. Main St., where he is explaining daily to eager searchers after health this amazingly efficient remedy for troubles of the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels, and for neuritis, rheumatism and extreme nervousness. Among the grateful ones who delight to tell what Konjola has done for them is Mrs. L. M. Stephens, Waynesville, R. F. D. No. 1, near this city. It is a graphic story she tells in her happiness in being relieved of a stomach affliction that caused her untold suffering for many years, and how Konjola banished a most aggravated type of nervousness. To the Konjola Man Mrs. Stephens said:

"Many years of suffering I put through with a badly disordered stomach. The things to eat I wanted most I dared not eat at all and what little plain food I could take would not digest, with the result that constant pain was with me. This kept up year after year, and though I tried everything supposed to be helpful I got no better. In fact, I became steadily worse, until my nervous system broke down almost completely. Upon rising in the morning I trembled so that I could not hold a cup of coffee. At night, when I retired, my heart pounded so rapidly that I was frightened. My feet and ankles were badly swollen, and my system generally was seriously depleted. "I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for victims of chronic indigestion and nervousness, and I decided to see if it would help me. The result was astonishing. No sooner had I taken a few doses than I began to see results. As I continued with the treatment my indigestion became better and better, and my nerves calmer. With the third bottle came complete recovery. My nerves are as steady as steel, and I can eat anything without discomfort. Just think—after years of suffering to be made well again in a few short weeks. Konjola has made a new woman of me, and I consider it a privilege to be able to make this statement for all to read."

Thousands of such statements are in the Konjola files, mute but eloquent tributes from people whom Konjola has transformed from invalidism to a state of health. Konjola is a natural remedy, containing the juices of 22 herbs and leaves, and ten other ingredients, all of acknowledged medicinal value. These ingredients, each with a special mission to perform within the body, all go to work at once. Results from Konjola are not only quick and certain, but lasting. New health is just around the corner; Konjola points the way.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Adv

CINCINNATI PLANS TO SEND MOTORCADE TO CLIFTON RALLY

State Senator L. T. Marshall, chairman of the Greene County Republican Executive Committee, received word Thursday that the Cincinnati Republican organization expects to send a motorcade of fifty autos to attend the big Seventh Congressional District Republican rally at Clifton October 26 at which Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential nominee, will speak.

Similar motor caravans are to be made up in Columbus, Dayton and other nearby cities, he said. The Cincinnati delegation will probably number more than 200 people, it is said.

Marshall also urges as many Greene County people as possible to attend the rally at Memorial Hall, Springfield, at 8 o'clock Friday night when Senator James Watson, of Indiana, widely-known orator, will deliver an address.
